In the Book of Genesis when God creates humanity he gives them dominion over the creatures. 'Be fruitful', he says, 'and fill the earth and subdue it and have dominion over the fish of the sea and over the birds of the air, and over every living thing that moves upon the earth' (1.28).

Well, mankind has tried to have dominion, and in the last two centuries or so has brought the planet and its resources to the crisis we face today. But when you think about it, those phrases about the fish and the birds imply a certain independence from man, and perhaps we might see that having dominion doesn't mean so much control and exploitation as having care and responsibility for.

The word dominion derives from the word for lord, and the lord is, of course God, so in our dominion of the world we should follow his pattern. And that pattern is one of order and the creation of situations in which all can flourish. It is about generosity and hospitality, about husbandry and pastoral care. We see this in the images of Jesus as shepherd and vine-dresser.

So we need to find ways in which the precious resources of the earth can be used for the service of all people, and which promote an integral development for all. How we exercise this dominion is a moral question but we have become caught up in what Pope Francis calls the technological paradigm. We now assume that we have a right to use and control everything irrespective of the consequences and we devise new technologies to make our power ever greater. And coupled with this technology run riot is the profit motive, also run riot.

Science is wonderful for it explores the creation and discovers more and more about both its simplicity and complexity, but increasingly, it seems to me, we are in danger of using its discoveries not to bring freedom and joy and human flourishing, but a world in which technology is god and the needs of humanity are left far behind. The needs of all people for a good life are always to be paramount if we are truly to exercise that dominion which God gives.

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY (CMS)

Beom-Jin (known as Fr. Stephen) and Marie-Laure with their baby Jonah are CMS mission partners in training who are looking to serve the church in South East Asia. They are particularly interested in Burma, one of the poorest countries in the world and notorious for its ongoing human rights violations and discrimination against ethnic minorities.

The PCC recently decided to support Fr. Stephen and Marie-Laure in their work, and have invited them to come and tell us all about their new life in Burma. This will be on Sunday 18th October at 3pm in the church, and is open to everybody.

The Sounds Good concert series will come to an end after the October concerts. After three years of planning and producing a varied programme of concerts the Church Council decided that it is time to review how best to promote the Church as a superb venue for musical entertainment.

But the series is not going out with a whimper! It is going out in style with not one, not two, but three musical events in October. All the events are different and at least one of them should appeal to most people, so do come along and join in; you will find details of these events below.

Thank you for all the support over the last three years and there is some good news for all those regular attendees that have supported and made donations to these events. The Church Council have listened to the comments made by those attending the music events about the pews (uncomfortable!!) and have decided that, over the next couple of years, improvements will be made to renew the pew cushions. There is already a fund for doing this and with funds produced by the music events there is a money pot of some £3000 to fund these improvements. These new cushions will obviously take time to put in place but if anyone is expert with a sewing machine and would like to assist please contact Peter Allen 01295 810967: your help will be snapped up!

So come along to the remainder of the Sounds Good concerts programme and at the same time help to swell the fund to improve the comfort of the seating.
